22 March, 11:44:21*. Principal shock of the March 22nd series.

Epicenter  $37^{\circ}40'$  north,  $122^{\circ}29'$  west, east of Mussel Rock, B.

This was the strongest shock felt in the San Francisco area since 1906. Felt land area was approximately 12,000 square miles. (See map, page 195.) Magnitude 5.3. Maximum intensity VII. No lives were lost; about forty minor injuries reported. Damage of all types was estimated by engineers to be in the neighborhood of one million dollars. Principal building damage occurred to one- and two-story wood-frame houses in the Westlake Palisades tract west of Daly City along the ocean. Several dwellings in this tract sustained structural damage. The 1,600,000-gallon reinforced-concrete Westlake Palisades water reservoir (partly underground) had a 4-foot-long crack on one side extending upward from the ground. The largest of several landslides completely blocked State Highway No. 1 near Mussel Rock, and the shoulder of the highway pavement was extensively cracked. Building and dwelling damage in San Francisco was slight and consisted mainly of cracked plaster and broken windows. The road pavement (on unconsolidated soil and fill) along the southern edge of Lake Merced sloughed off into the lake, and both ends of a 200-foot-long pedestrian bridge collapsed. It was reported 2,395 emergency calls were received by plumbers, with 1,500 coming from the home areas south of Sloat Boulevard and north of the Colma cemeteries. There were 856 water heaters damaged, 125 of which required replacement; 62 toilets replaced; 175 wash basins damaged or fractured; 245 toilet tank covers broken; 173 boiler steam lines fractured or broken; 97 broken sewer lines; 422 fractured, broken or bent gas supply lines. At the Colma cemeteries some headstones fell and many were twisted. About forty-four brick chimneys at Daly City were pulled down by the fire department up to 26 March.

All strong-motion seismographs in San Francisco, San Jose, and Oakland were operated by this shock, also the instrument located on the Carquinez Bridge at Martinez.

One foreshock and six aftershocks of magnitude  $3\frac{1}{2}$  or higher were recorded on 22 and 23 March. Numerous smaller aftershocks were recorded.

Intensity VII:

Colma (Holy Cross Cemetery). Motion rapid, violent. Direction E-W. Loud earth noises heard. Plaster, windows, and walls cracked in old stone building. "The movement of monuments in some sections of this cemetery reflect the possibility that there was more than one type of earth motion. Some monuments were turned as much as  $45^\circ$  on a vertical axis on their stone base but were not dislodged, while other monuments were moved on their base as much as 6 inches in a westerly direction. Other monuments were toppled from the base." Ground: Sandy loam, sloping.

Colma (Woodlawn Cemetery). Gable end of dormer fell. Tombstones shifted at few places; urn toppled.

Colma (Eternal Home Cemetery). Tombstone toppled.

Colma (Salem Memorial Park Cemetery). Brick chimney damaged.

Colma (Thornhill Dr.). V. Motion rapid, lasted about 10 seconds. "Was just parking the car. Car swayed E-W. Earth noises sounded like airplane overhead."

Colma (220 Castenada). V. Small objects and furnishings shifted.

Daly City, Westlake, and Westlake Palisades areas. Press reported damage in these areas was estimated by the city manager as follows: Personal belongings, $400,000; homes in Westlake Palisades, $62,500; Westlake Shopping Center, $69,000. Of the 4,000 homes in the Westlake and Westlake Palisades areas, 200 were damaged, 20 seriously. It was reported the average cost of repairs should not exceed $200, with the exception of the homes sustaining structural damage in the Westlake Palisades tract. It was reported forty-four brick chimneys were pulled down in Daly City by the fire department and that many more were probably damaged. The Westlake Reservoir, 1,600,000-gallon, 175 feet long, 108 feet wide, 23 feet deep (half submerged in the ground) had a 4-foot-long crack, extending upward from the ground, in the side where a light fixture fell on the third floor. Plaster fell from walls and ceilings in the Hall of Justice. Walls cracked and a skylight broke at the City Hall. The Presidio branch library at Sacramento near Baker was closed due to damage. The McCreery branch (built about 1903) on 16th near Market was condemned. The brick building was declared structurally unsafe. Repairs to the Presidio branch included chimney top, hanging light fixture supports, and plaster cracks. Several other branch libraries suffered damage, including the Ocean View branch at 111 Broad Street which was closed for five days. Steel book racks in the Main Library at the Civic Center moved during the shock, spewing books on the floor, but no damage was done to the building. No serious damage was reported in any of the city's hospitals. At the Mary's Help Hospital, 145 Guerrero Street, plaster was cracked and loosened on the upper floors. Loose masonry or falling mortar on upper floors caused the police to rope off areas at Post Street and Grant Avenue, at 140 Sansome Street, and at 625 Polk Street. The Seventh Day Adventist Church at 2897 California Street reported two long cracks in the steeple. Chimney fell at 3977 Clay Street and one was badly damaged at 420 Frederick Street. At Stonestown many windows were broken in one of the large apartment buildings. From the top floor of one of the 13-story Parkmerced Towers apartment building, a resident reported the building "rocked and rolled, knocked all the lamps down, and cracked all the plastering. The house looks like a wreck." It was reported the top floor of St. Anne's School, 1330-14th Ave., was badly damaged. Glass was broken in more than 400 city-owned street lights, mostly along Great Highway, Sunset Boulevard, Sloat Boulevard, and Junipero Serra Boulevard. The Pacific Gas and Electric Company had similar damage in the Richmond district. The PG&E's biggest chore was reconnecting gas water heaters. Most plumbing damage occurred west of Twin Peaks, generally in the area along Nineteenth Avenue, on Sloat Boulevard, east on Ocean Avenue to San Jose Avenue, and south on San Jose Avenue to Daly City. Grocery and liquor stores in San Francisco had fairly heavy damage from bottled goods breakage. The Safeway stores at Alemany and San Jose Avenues, and on West Portal Avenue, were a shambles. Plate glass windows buckled at the Alemany Store. Store front windows were shattered along Balboa Street from 35th to 40th Avenues in the Richmond district, and on Irving Street between 20th and 23rd Avenues in the Sunset district. All front windows of the Littleman supermarket, 1630 Ocean Avenue, were broken out. It was reported light poles "waved like reeds in the breeze" at the Civic Center. Bells rang at St. Patrick's Church, Mission near Third Streets. A painter working on the south tower of the Golden Gate Bridge said the tower shook "like a tree in a gale." The deck of the bridge galloped up and down and the suspenders (cables) slipped back and forth. He ran to get off the bridge. At least 20 windows broke at the Administration Building and Toll Plaza. Bay Bridge authorities reported no structural damage and traffic moved smoothly. "But it was a real hard shake," said one employee. The Sheraton-Palace Hotel had a broken plate glass window and broken crockery. The telephone company reported no serious damage to its system, although many telephones were out. Repairing damage to the pipe organ located in the Civic Auditorium (Civic Center) was estimated to cost $300. Air pipes broke and a portion of the organ called the harp unit fell askew when the 7,320 pipes were shaken. Scores of motorists on Bayshore Highway stopped immediately after the shock, thinking they had a flat tire. One motorist said, "We felt a shuddering sidewise motion."

San Francisco Schools. The following reports on San Francisco schools were taken from reports received from the State Department of Public Works, Division of Architecture. "None of the damage found was of such a nature that would endanger life and all the schools inspected were back in session. With the exception of two schools, Presidio Jr. High and Sheridan, where the chimneys suffered some damage, and the San Francisco City College, where some ceramic facing tiles fell off, all the damage observed consisted of cracked plaster on furred walls and fallen portions of plastered ceilings, particularly in buildings having wood lath. It can be generally stated that schools built prior to the Field Act suffered greater damage than those built after 1933. Most of the modern schools went through the earthquake practically unscathed. The following schools were selected for inspection after discussions with city officials brought out the fact that most of the damage was reported from schools falling in a line roughly paralleling the San Andreas Fault."

Presidio Jr. High, at 29th Ave. and Clement St. Three-story reinforced-concrete and steel-frame structure. A r.c. chimney rises about 35 feet above roof. Ornamentations atop this chimney became loose and fell off. One piece, weighing about 350 lbs., fell into the paved court and another fell through the skylights on the top floor which, being of r.c. flat slab construction, suffered no damage. The chimney proper, probably r.c., does not show any sign of damage. An old vertical crack through the concrete wall showed at the junction of two wings of the building. Horizontal and 45° shear cracks appeared in the plaster of the stairwell.

INTENSITY VI - San Francisco

George Washington, at 31st Ave., between Geary and Balboa. Three-story r.c. structure, built in 1936. The school has large window openings. Music room and auditorium added in 1952. No damage. Hardly any plaster cracks.

Abraham Lincoln, at 22nd Ave., between Quintara and Santiago. A substantial r.c. building, first built in 1940 with addition in 1952. The only noticeable damage was some slight cracks in the stairwells at floor levels.

City College, at Phelan Ave., and Ocean Ave. The Science building, built in 1940, has ceramic tile facing. This veneer, near the NE corner of the building, broke loose and fell off over an area of 4' x 8' (approx.). Some fractured tiles numbering three or four and a few other tiles bulged out. No other damage was reported.

Farragut School, between Capitol and Faxon Ave. This school is a stuccoed-wood-frame building, built in 1911, with r.c. walls up to the elevated first floor level. Extensive plaster cracks, particularly in the stairwells at the junction of the plastered stud wall and concrete. On the exterior the corners of what appeared to be a bond beam at the top of the elevated first floor showed spalling.

Sheridan School, at Capitol and Farallones St. Three-story stuccoed-wood-frame building, built in 1909, with r.c. walls up to the elevated first floor level. This building is practically identical with the Farragut School. Extensive plaster damage was noted, particularly in the stair walls, running horizontally. A 14-foot-high brick chimney tied together with angle irons fell off in sections. One bracing strut in the attic space broke, probably as a result of the impact suffered when the chimney hit the roof. Plaster ceiling was also damaged. It was also noticed that an empty water tank in the attic broke loose from its pipe connections.

Longfellow School, at Lowell St., near Mission. Built about 1907. First story r.c.; second story wood-frame. This school is just about to be replaced by a new building. The stairwell shows extensive horizontal cracks. There were also sizeable vertical cracks in the plastered stud wall partitions and ceilings.

West Portal School, Taraval St., Claremont Blvd., and Lenox Way (west portal of the streetcar tunnel). Two-story-type 1/b structure, built in 1927 and rehabilitated in 1932. Reinforced-concrete building. Numerous cracks in the corridor walls in horizontal and vertical directions. Most of the cracks, however, must have been in existence for some time and should be attributed to the result of continuous earth movement rather than to the effect of the recent earthquakes. There is a large old crack through the terraced yard and through the r.c. retaining walls. This crack roughly follows the center line of the streetcar tunnel which lies underneath. A few classroom doors are out of alignment and bind.

Lowell High, at Masonic and Hayes. Three-story-type III, r.c. and brick veneer building, built in 1912, rehabilitated in 1935. The corridors have been strengthened by struts. There are numerous cracks in the plaster along and around these struts. Horizontal cracks in the stairwell at floor levels. Plaster fell in sizeable chunks off the classroom ceilings in library, chemistry laboratory, and auditorium. These floors are very springy, and the plaster is on wood lath (with the exception of the rehabilitation work which was done with exp. metal lath). One vertical crack was observed through the center of the brick veneered pilaster on the west side of the Hayes Street facade.

James Lick Jr. High, at Noe and 25th Sts. Built in 1933. This three-story building suffered hardly any damage. Very few plaster cracks.

Other schools not inspected but reported on by school principals:

My 3-year-old daughter and I were at the store when shock occurred. There was a smell of gas. My children said there was the same smell at St. Michael's School. As soon as one smelt the gas it really began to shake. The ground seemed to rise up and down and the most awful roar - something so different from all other sounds - came with this movement. Store seemed to rock and roll several times, then shake very hard. Glass, food, etc., flew. People ran; some panicky. Others, like myself, didn't know if it was an explosion or shock until we went outside. As I ran home I saw other damage. In our apartment one room had no damage, while four others either

INTENSITY VI - San Francisco

- San Francisco (2351-44th Ave.). Small objects and furnishings shifted. Dishes, windows, and furniture broke. Plaster walls cracked; mantel cracked. Damage slight.
- San Francisco (1485 Market St.). "One of the fluorescent lights, about 6 feet long and one of many on the ceiling, snapped off at one end, suspending itself from the ceiling by the other end. I heard the inspector say that the tile in all the restrooms was cracked. This location is the Social Security Area office." Ground: Soil, level.
- San Francisco (533-28th Ave.). Small objects and furnishings shifted. Dishes broke. Walls cracked. Damage slight. Ground: Sloping, filled in.
- San Francisco (Geary and Van Ness Ave.). Small objects shifted. Plaster, windows, and walls cracked. Damage slight. Ground: Rocky.
- San Francisco (27-7th Ave., Park-Precidio District). Small objects shifted. Plaster and walls cracked. Damage slight. Ground: Sandy, level.
- San Francisco (447-34th Ave.). Front window broke; lamp broke; ornaments fell from shelves. Plaster cracked. Statues fell from shrines on the north and south fences; another statue twisted. In house (upstairs) statues fell from shelves on east wall only. Chimney cracked above the roof, close to east wall of house. "No other house on our block had a broken window." Ground: Sand, slightly sloping.
- San Francisco (650 Stanyan St.). Planter knocked off T.V. and two flower pots fell in dining room. All plants destroyed. Plaster cracks in living room and dining room; small bits of plaster on floor. Two small tables moved sideways from original position. Ground: Sandy soil, level.
- San Francisco (1440 Harrison St.). Small objects shifted. Slab of marble broke on third floor. Damage slight. Ground: Level, filled in.
- San Francisco (1871 Page St.). Light chest of drawers shifted 3-4 inches in southerly direction. Small top-heavy objects (perfume, lipsticks) knocked over on chest. Quite a bit of cracked plaster, enough for paint to chip and small pieces to fall. Worst cracks from top to bottom in corners of two rooms. "Some top-heavy objects (packages) stored on a narrow shelf were not knocked over. They were against a wall to the south, so it seems to me that the motion must have been from north to south." Damage slight.
- San Francisco (2126-35th Ave.). Seven or eight potted plants fell from dining room table and broke; all fell to north side of table. Other small objects and figurines fell and broke. Kitchen stove shifted almost 1 inch to north.

INTENSITY VI - San Francisco

- San Francisco (241 Granada Ave.). Piano moved 3 inches from wall; desk and bookcase moved 6 inches. All lamps, books, bric-a-brac, and clocks thrown to floor; also, groceries, dishes, and plants. Three stucco cracks on south outer wall; two front stairs loosened and wall on either side cracked and broken for a height of 2 feet. Damage slight. Ground: Sandy soil, loose, level.
- San Francisco (Southern Pacific Yards, Visitacion Valley). Some material knocked off shelves in Stores Department on first floor. Plaster cracked. Damage slight. Ground: Level, filled in.
- San Francisco (286 Sagamore St.). Few plaster cracks; three window cracks. Picture fell and broke; several potted plants fell and broke; one glass broke; small bottles thrown from medicine chest and few broke. Worst damage was to intake pipe of hot water heater, where a crack opened up following aftershocks, making it necessary to shut off water. Damage slight.

INTENSITY VI - San Francisco

San Francisco (Letterman Housing, Quarters 1135-F, Presidio).

Small objects and furnishings shifted. Plaster cracked. Damage slight. Ground: Sloping.

San Francisco (2026-19th Ave.). Small objects and furnishings shifted. Dishes broke. Walls and ceilings cracked. Damage slight. Separated plumbing under kitchen sink (south side of house). "Sheet rock did not do as well as plastered walls. Did not roll a long time after major shake. Just a quick, hard shake. Some of the little shocks have been pretty sharp and quick, and can be heard before they are felt." Ground: Soil, loose, sloping.

San Francisco (1721 Judah St.). "When the big shock came, the only noise we heard was the joists, or the frame of the house, breaking up. It's a two-story house and I thought it would collapse before we got out. I didn't notice any particular direction, but the description I read in the paper of a 'dust map shaken out' is most apt, to us. A salt shaker and a bottle of after-shave lotion were the only things that fell, but our square grand piano moved 2 inches. Our house is built on sandy soil and is about 33 years old. The ceilings were cracked at one time but were painted over. The point is still intact."

San Francisco (1330-14th Ave., St. Anne's School). Small objects and furnishings shifted. Plaster cracked. Damage slight. Ground: Level.

San Francisco (28 Masonic Ave., Presentation High School). Small objects and furnishings shifted. Dishes broke. Plaster cracked. Small statues twisted. Damage slight. Ground: Level.

San Francisco (25th St., between Diamond and Douglass Sts., New Valley District). "My feet on the sidewalk sort of moved back and forth like a roller coaster movement. I saw a high antenna bend nearly in half. At the Bank of America, 24th and Castro Sts., people were nervous. They were taking the big pots of plants from the balcony ridge and putting them on the floor. Shoemaker said his machine rolled back and forth. On Hill Street (level) bookcase moved away from wall. Cans and packages fell in grocery store at 24th and Castro Sts., and my husband ran to the street. No great damage to the grocery store."

San Francisco (245 Leavenworth St., 6th floor). "My T.V. was at the foot of my bed on a table about 6 inches higher than bed. I fell to the floor and the T.V. hit the bed where I'd been. The place shook like a freight train going through. Two lamps fell and a bookcase fell forward. Everything in refrigerator was a mess. The subsequent tremors were enough to make me a little jumpy, so I put everything on the floor. Dishes broke. Plaster cracked. Damage slight."

San Francisco (780 Junipero Serra Blvd.). "Very noisy and very heavy. Glass shelves in bathroom fell out. Water in fish bowl (2/3 full) splashed on the floor. Pictures fell from walls. Lights activated by mercury switches flashed on and off. Plaster buckled under canvas wall covering. Stove and refrigerator shifted. Minor shocks were felt, accompanied by earth noises, at frequent intervals until seven o'clock. From about ten o'clock until midnight minor tremors were felt hourly. A heavy jolt about midnight activated mercury switches again. Minor tremors were felt occasionally until Sunday night, the 24th."

Menlo Park (on San Fransquito Creek, just across from the Stanford Campus, 1925 Oak Ave.). "Heard low-pitched earth noise for at least 2 seconds before I felt any motion. Then the house vibrated at such a rapid rate I first thought that something had broken in one of the appliance motors around the house and that the vibration was caused by a motor running with unbalanced shaft. Frying pan on the burner of a built-in electric range (mounted on a wall about 4 feet above a concrete foundation) made a terrific noise and seemed to jump up and down, but chairs and tables supported by a more springy wooden floor did not. I concluded from this that the vertical component of acceleration came very close to 'g.' The frequency was not far from the pitch of the lowest note on a piano, and I would say that a vertical motion of perhaps 15-20 cycles/sec and amplitude of nearly a half-millimeter would account quite well for what was noticed in the house. The duration seemed about 30 seconds; however, I imagine it was really closer to 5 seconds. As soon as I realized it was an earthquake, I decided to watch the water in a swimming pool just outside the house. By this time the vibrations had slowed down somewhat, and the surface of the water was covered with small waves (wave length perhaps 4 inches) moving in a N-S direction; so it seems that the initial motion also had a N-S component. There was a period of a few seconds of comparative quiet, then a very much slower E-W motion started, which set up waves on the pool with a wave length of perhaps 4 feet and an amplitude of nearly 3 inches, almost splashing the water over the coping. The pool is 36 feet long in the E-W direction. Motion of the water in the pool could still be seen 20 minutes later."

Menlo Park (1325 Crane St.). Motion began gradual, then increased in intensity, lasted about 4 minutes. Direction NE. Loud earth noises heard. Plaster cracked. Ground: Soil, level.

Menlo Park (302 Leland Ave.). V. Motion rapid, rolling, strong for 35 seconds. Direction N and W-E. Moderate roaring earth noises heard. Glassware and door chimes shifted. Ground: Underground river 20 feet below surface.

until I felt thoroughly shaken. It all diminished with a slower motion. I was not conscious of any direction. My son was outdoors and said the house 'wiggled awful.' House is on firm, level ground, very compact, even though situated right next to a creek. Rumbling seemed to come up from the ground. In some rooms nothing moved; in others, almost everything moved. For the most part, objects along outside walls didn't move at all, while objects on the inside walls did. Plaster cracked on inside walls only. One crack had a corresponding crack in the next room but did not actually go all the way through the wall. Felt no twisting sensation at all. No chimneys or uprights fell. Foundations, walls, etc., are in good shape. The only damage was to plaster and small objects which fell."

that hangs on the inside wall of the living room. It swung out from the wall from the bottom to a distance of about 6 inches but did not tilt at any angle when it stopped moving. All other pictures and mirrors in the house were tilted. The noise was astonishingly loud and sounded like a swiftly moving train had suddenly run under the house. Noise was unlike any sound I have ever heard. As far as we can determine, there was no damage, not even any new cracks. Our house is made of concrete blocks, 8 inches thick, reinforced with steel rods, and built off the ground about 3 feet. One other interesting fact which I noticed was that three large dishes, which I keep on top of a fence for the birds drinking water, were not disturbed in any way, but only the day before, all three were knocked to the ground by the sonic boom that was felt and heard here in Novato." Ground: Soil, compact, level.

Patterson. Motion slow, lasted 8-10 seconds. Direction E.
Ground: Compact.

Point Arena. "A loosely constructed window fell out of the post office building about the time of the shock. This could or could not have been due to the shock. A forest ranger in Point Arena told me that he was resting his head on a table at the time and that he had a glass of water in front of him. The water level in the glass began to shake. The two incidents are the only ones I have heard of in this area."

Princeton Beach (on Half Moon Bay). Motion rapid, lasted 30 seconds. Direction NW-SE. Moderate earth noises heard.
Ground: Sandy; bench.

Sacramento (Capitol Building). "Observer with school group on first floor of Capitol Building. Upon entering room all noticed large chandelier swinging E-W. No one felt shock. When questioned, guide was unable to give any explanation for the swinging, but he did move out from under it. No one thought of a shock, as no motion was felt."
